Politeness

Any violent revolution will result in establishing a new ruling party. Violence is power. Whether it's the the biggest muscles or the most destructive mis-le...it's all the same game. Marxists hope to seize power, Anarchists hope to destroy it. Anarchists believe that people are not inherently evil (i.e. born evil) but ~~are~~ corrupted by their environment and the power games within it... Marxists share the belief in the decency of human nature but they think that they can use power and use control for good ends without becoming corrupted and deflected by it away from their goal.

YOU CANNOT FORCE PEOPLE TO BE EQUAL EQUALITY PEACE AND FREEDOM WILL HAPPEN WHEN
THE PEOPLE WANT IT AND CAN ACHEIVE IT
AND NOT BECAUSE THE LOCAL WORKERS
SOVIET TELLS THEM TO CREATE IT!!

Uitwa

How can you have an equal society a 'classless' society when you've got a bunch of self confessed dictators at the top. If you get a small group of subversives organising revolt amongst the workers then any sort of uprising is going to be sexist, authoritarian, inherently unequal and racist, because you haven't changed the people first. The first step is to change yourself and those around you, start living life according to your principles, with some dignity. YOU CAN'T DESTROY THE STATE IMMEDIATELY, SO MAKE IT AS REDUNDANT AS YOU CAN.....

Chic

THIS IS CALLED 'NON-VIOLENT REVOLUTION'....
This doesn't mean fighting a traditional revolution without violence, it means subverting the State in a completely different way, starting with yourself

Call yourself a woman?

You're a product of the media; paint you face, shave your legs, shave your armpits. Wear high shoes that give you blisters, bunions and agonizing pain up and down your legs. Wear tight skirts; jeans you can't sit down in, wear a nylon bra that gives you 'shape' and cuts red scars into your body. spend, spend, spend; fashion, turn to the left. You're trussed like an oven ready chicken into the media's concept of beauty.

Is it beauty when all you can think about is your aching feet? Beauty, when you can't rub your eyes for fear of smudging your mascara? Beauty, when the stubble pokes through your nylon tights?

You are a toy, a puppet, pre-packed and ready for consumption by the ideal partner. And worst of all, he expects this processed package, this 'beauty' because he is as much a product of sex-stereotyping as you are.

CALL YOURSELF A MAN

You're a product of the media, act tough and shit on "your" girl, you're "naturally dominant"; provide, then sleep as the baby cries. Chat up the girls - that is your right; "hold" your drink - this makes you a man. Take, take, take; take me, I'm yours. You are after-shave and muscle and the media tattoos "MAN" across your hairy chest.

YOU are a toy. You are not allowed to show pain or fear - only brute force or hatred and strength. You must not care.

It's all around you. If you aren't living it out, everyone else is. Ask yourself why? Do you have to mimic the glossy pictures; is finding your ideal partner so important that it must distort your natural personality and natural body?

Surely if He expects shaved arempits, He can't accept the true self. Is your opinion of yourself that low? Surely 'beuty' comes from within, from personality, from the qualities that attract people to you, from your natural ~~xxx~~ self.. Why distort this by transforming yourself into another of society's stereotypes?

"FLESH AND BLOOD IS WHAT WE ARE, OUR COVER IS BLOWN..."

Can't we accept each other for what we are, naturally instead of blowing ourselves up into farcical images of "normality". Society exploits your desire to belong; your desire to be "normal", mercilessly-

Smoke this cigar and beautiful women will drape themselves over you.

Wear this perfume and men will follow you up and down escalators to give you flowers.

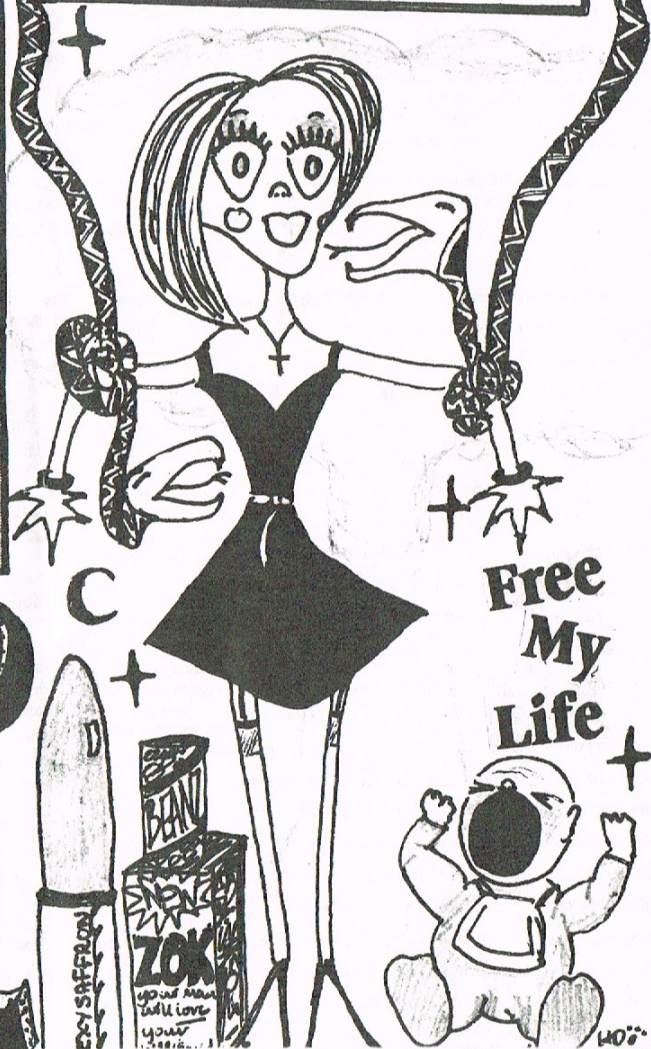

Your desire to be "beautiful"-to attract the partner of your choice before someone else does, is a massive industry bent on maintaining the status quo, for the profits to be made out of sex-stereotyping. They are exploiting our need for love respect and friendship.

But these are needs we all have. We don't need them telling us. Make-up and muscle won't overcome these needs - is plastic TV love really the meaning of life ? You have to accept yourself for what you really are.

Reject the stereotypes - be YOURSELF.

Reject the system - be a person.
You don't need them.

The man falls, screaming, to the floor. The words are hard to say. "...I've...I've...I've been mugged," The officers none is one of disbelief.

"Oh yes, Name? Age? Married? Have you ever made a claim of this nature before?". The questions are endless. The man's brain throbs as images of bloody violence splatter his memory. "Of course, we'll have to satisfy ourselves that you're telling the truth, before we proceed further." The officer peers at the dishevelled, crying man. "You're sure you're not making it up? It's my belief that every man secretly wants to have his face smashed up. You sure you didn't lead them on? Walking about at night alone like that, you're asking for it, you know."

Confused, the man stammers out a plea of innocence. not good enough.

"You don't look that beaten up to me. Why didn't you fight back a bit more?"

"For fucks sake! He threatened to kill me!"

"Alright, alright", mutters the officer. "No need to get hysterical. You men are all the same."

Rape is a subject which is looked on by the media as disgusting and vulgar, but why then don't they give coverage and support to feminist groups. Well, basically because in doing so they would be supporting subversion, in one way or another (in their view) and we all know the pressure that comes from that. The media do have their own political views within each but they're not looking for another Superpower, and what alternative is that? Just another form of oppressiveness, hoping to catch votes. Anyway, back at the original subject: Why do some men stoop to the level of rape? Well, in some cases because they are mentally ill, and in some cases purely because they purely don't find any enjoyment out of 'normal' sex, they can't cope with a loving relationship and turn to rape to try to assert some sort of warped masculinity. (Big Man Big M.A.N.). Another element of rapists is trying to show their masculine aggression over women. These things combine to create a mental state to lead to rape, a trigger in a warped minded person. A way to protest against rape is by boycotting films glorifying rape or for that matter a pornographic film, they're both the same.

VIOLENCE

Hours of interrogation follow. Two callous, brutal policewomen question him; obscenely personal questions - his morality is on trial. However, medical examinations prove that he has in fact been mugged but his injuries are not severe and will leave no permanent damage. He is almost persuaded to drop the case, as he realises that he would be required to repeat the whole thing in a courtroom. Then he remembers the knife at his throat. A violent maniac walks free, while his mind is scarred for life. He insists on a trial and the police capture his attacker.

The trial lasts an age, filling the gossip columns for days. The final outcome is that his attacker is released with a fine of £2,000, on account of his the victim being 'guilty of contributory negligence'. Masculists everywhere are outraged. Typical, they shout, of society attitude to men. Numerous discussions are held on Radio 4 and everyone sort of agrees that really the judge was too hard on the poor boy, but then you have to set examples, and it was his fault really, he shouldn't have been alone at night, he was asking for it, what did he expect, he probably enjoyed it anyway, blah, blah, blah, blah, etc.

A lot of people have heard the environmentalist arguments against Nuclear Power, and, whilst these are all incredibly important, I think it would be worthwhile to shift the debate and look at the issue from a different angle; The excuse that nuclear power gives to the State to suppress freedoms. Nuclear power makes for a more centralised State - an entirely secret police force, to protect the uranium from theft for bomb manufacture, also have the knack of sealing the public from what is going on inside the power stations. It seems ironic that the police are primarily there to stop terrorists getting hold of bombs, while the State at the same time is using the Fast Breeder reactors to increase its own nuclear stockpile. The thought of terrorists owning their own weapons is appalling but the idea of governments owning them is supposed to be reassuring! It seems the 'terrorist' all depends on which side of the fence you're standing. I have no illusions about dying a noble death. I don't care whether I die from a tringe happy Reagan's whim or for a glorious revolutionary martyrdom for some violent beliefs dream. I WANT TO LIVE

The actual mechanical process involved in nuclear power is so complex that can only be truly grasped by a very select few physicists. This ensures the people are kept even more in the dark. And who are these MEN answering themselves and the government! AND THEY WONDER

WHY I'M SO WORRIED??? Look at the way alternative energy sources are shown to be impracticable. Anything not 'NUKE' just doesn't work. It is because many, if not all of the 'soft energy' alternatives (i.e. non-nuclear + non-fossil) are decentralised and require no huge hierarchy to run it. (CONT/2 OVER...)

Starting now, by positive, human action. Anarchy means thinking for yourself, trying to find your own answers so that means you start working now, living your life with dignity and reason. To me, this sort of approach is 100% more positive and more realistic than wearing the right badges, selling the party paper and waiting for the 'Glorious Day'. It's up to you to decide if you think wearing @ patches and leering at coppers in the street is really good enough. DON'T LEAVE IT TO SOMEONE ELSE. NON-VIOLENT REVOLUTION IS UP TO ALL OF US.....ANARCHY.....PEACE.....AND FREEDOM!!!!

FASCISM

FASCISM is an element in our conditioning we are not born with fascist elements, but they've still worked their way into our society. The basic origin of racialism comes from the time when blacks were used for slave trade in this country, and it has carried on ever since then. Fascism is a rather different matter, this originates from 'State Control' and is a mask not only to oppress us, but to make us oppress others. Fascism, and for that matter race, are both connected with patriotism, as the union jack is a symbol of oppression, and both of these elements are part of our conditioned outlook on the world which are fed to us by the State, but indirectly. The only way to wipe out such fascist elements is to question everything that you normally accept in everyday life. Think of changes and new possibilities for your lifestyle and say to yourself "Am I really respecting others" Once you have initiated these changes you should find that the element slowly wipes itself out. The only way we can come about change in any form, is to change ourselves first. A large and influential part of fascism within our society today comes from the police. Why? Because some of them are prejudiced against blacks. It was the State that originally encouraged blacks to immerse in their lifestyle and say to yourself "Am I really respecting others" Once they start asking for equal rights they want to get rid of them. Isn't it a bit feeble that just to change ourselves first. Whether the colour of someone's skin can determine DON'T BE PROUD TO BE BRITISH. DON'T BE PROUD TO BE ANY RACE. IT'S A LABEL. REALISE WHAT IT IS. REJECT IT.

"ANARCHY HITS THE NEWS STAND!" - SHOCK -

The range and scope of anarchist/libertarian publications is increasing at an encouraging rate. Listed below are a few of the more regular and easily available ones.

20p. BLACK FLAG (ORGAN OF THE ANARCHIST BLACK CROSS)

Very erratic and infrequent, but when it does come out it is the best paper I know for international coverage. Full paper size. Has great cartoon work. Concentrates on international hunger strikes, sit-ins and squats and other physical direct action of that nature. Good layout too.

5p. DIRECT ACTION (PAPER OF THE D.A. MOVEMENT)

The Direct Action Movement supports the belief of Anarcho-Sindicalism, that is the philosophy that social change must come from the workforce, who, after a revolution will run their own industries through co-operating federations, thus making centralised control unnecessary. Naturally, it views everything from the D.A.M. point of view. Their coverage is, mainly, general anarchist beliefs than up-to-date news coverage.

25p. FREEDOM (ANARCHIST FORTNIGHTLY)

My particular favourite. Consistent, regular and challenging. Contains excellent news coverage, good rundown on anarchist activities nationally, and, an excellent 'Letters' pages. Each issue contains an Anarchist Review which is a kind of open forum for new anarchist ideas and tactics. The paper is also very practical, at the time of the Brixton riots it gave out a free 'Brixton Bust Leaflet' advising you of your rights in police custody. What more can I say? Excellent.

30p. XTRA!

From the best to the worst; this paper is boring, childish and insulting. This is the sort of thing The Exploited would like. Rather than offering solid practical advice, it contains such gems of information as how to deface banknotes to confuse cashiers and how to dodge fares... Openly violent and incredibly unfunny, Xtra! is a rip-off, and a badly put together one at that.

20p? PIGS FOR SLAUGHTER (Price varies)

IX... 'a practical paper for the militant an anarchist punk... IX' Despite continual assertions that violence is the main legitimate anarchist tactic, this fanzine, in line with most violent anarchists, actually does nothing remotely macho other than dissolve into cheap vandalism (glueing locks, etc.) and so manages to avoid taking responsibility for anything remotely constructive.

30p. PEACE NEWS (FOR NON-VIOLENT REVOLUTION)

Not an exclusively anarchist paper, but excellent none the less. This is nearly as good as Freedom. Well written and well researched. Has a huge scope of subjects throughout numerous issues, but main subject areas include; the arms race, sexism, conservation, poverty and starvation, nuclear power and non-violent anarchism. Much time also spent discussing ecological alternatives as well as social ones. The most popular paper in the peace movement at the moment and deservedly so.

40p. ANARCHY

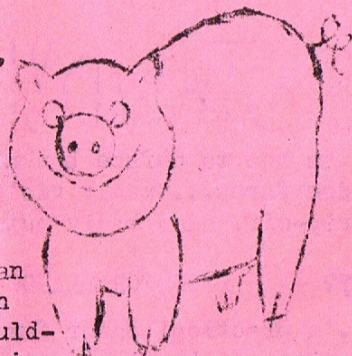

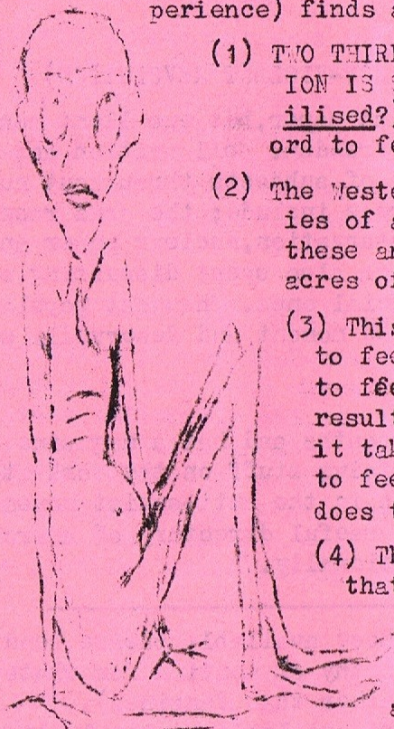

Comes out every couple of months and has a magazine format. The last issue we have contains stuff on the Work Ethic and a debate on the role of men in the anti-sexist movement, amongst others, also has a useful directory of anarchist groups and publications nationally.

These are only a few of those available, please send us copies of anything you think is worthy of mention for whatever reasons (papers/magazines rather than fanzines). All those mentioned here are available at local alternative bookshops, except Pigs' (121 Railton Rd, London SE 24) GOOD @ READING!!!

BEING a vegetarian (Shock, Horror, Exposé) is a dangerous business.

Animal eaters are incredibly defensive about their habit and will go to great lengths to ridicule you: 'It's unnatural/So you kill plants instead/Man has always eaten meat/It must be so boring/I couldn't stand it. The last comment is always said with the implication that because you can' stand it', you're somehow subhuman. So here are one or two counter arguments which your average flesh eater (in my experience) finds a little uncomfortable.

- (1) TWO THIRDS OF THE WORLD'S POPULATION IS STARVING, The Western (civilised?) world says it can't afford to feed them and help them.
- (2) The Western world eats vast quantities of animals. In order to feed these animals it grows millions of acres of fodder.
- (3) This means good land is used to feed animals, which are used to feed humans. The "energy loss" result from this chain means that it takes five times as much land to feed an animal eater as it does to feed a vegetarian.
- (4) The obvious conclusion is that if we ate more vegetables, less people would be starving. By demanding meat we are not only killing animals, we're killing people.

THAT'S usually far too logical and rational for flesh eaters. They respond with bluster along the lines of...."Oh, but if people are starving it's their own fault, their government should do something about it." i find this argument OBSCENE. Millions of people are suffering needlessly and their fellow humans can't be bothered to do anything, because their stomachs are too full.

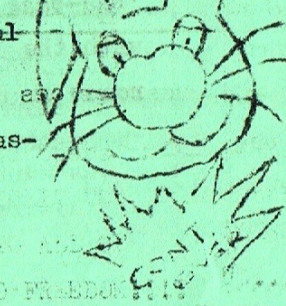

HOWEVER, we all know that irrational arguments (e.g. i like it, so i'll ignore you) are far more exciting than reasoning (e.g. i'll consider what you say, although it makes me feel uncomfortable). So, let's get a little more emotive, hard hitting..

- (1) The animal is killed. Sometimes "^{for}humanely" (how can killing be humane?) sometimes not...
-or-
- (2) The dead flesh is cleaned and cut up for you. It's prepared into nice handy little portions and all wrapped up, so that you can select the juiciest
-or-
- (3) IF YOU HAD TO KILL THAT ANIMAL, IF YOU HAD TO HEAR IT SCREAM IN TERROR, AND SEE A POOL OF RED BLOOD ON THE FLOOR AND SMELL THE ROTTING FLESH, WOULD YOU FEEL HUNGRY? WOULD YOUR MOUTH STILL WATER AT THE SMELL OF FRYING XXXXX MUSCLE AND BLOOD?

So, the only arguments left to the animal eater are

- (i) we have to eat meat.
(for biological reasons)
- (ii) we always have done
(tradition, you see)
- (iii) I like eating meat

Vegetarians

ONE of those arguments at a time, then . You don'T have to eat animals; as long as you eat a balanced diet including a variety of vegetables (when did you last eat parsley?), cheeses, nuts and soyas, your body thrives. I speak from experience. It's far, far cheaper too. I can put together a really good meal for two people for less than 50p. "But man has always eaten meat". Oh dear. We've always had wars, women have always been inferior to men, blacks have always been exploited. THAT DOES

MAKE IT RIGHT...

I think we can dismiss the tradition argument. So, like eating dead animals. Psychopaths like killing people.

YOUR

BOOBY BUTCHER?

I see little difference. PEOPLE are prepared to discuss politics, idealistic beliefs, religious ideas and so on, quite happily - as long as they remain ideas. When an "idea" stretches far enough to affect something as basic as their diet/eating habits, they get very frightened. You see, we're not taught to question what we eat. Our parents bring us up to love 'baa-baas' and 'moo-moos'. We never associate them with the lamb chop placed on our plate, the Sunday roast or sausage rolls.

A woman's place is wherever she feels fulfilled, happy
So is a man's. The feminist movementx can be as sexist as the male-orientated society it's trying to fight.

You know the sort of thing, "Workshop on sexism ~~sex~~ - women only.." There are many positive sides to the movement, which are obvious. But the negative side is it's exclusiveness. There are a couple of anti-sexist organisations specifically for men. But surely an anti-sexist organisation ~~has~~ hopes to achieve anything must operate for women and men.

For example, a "Keep the night" march was organised by a women's group in Exeter recently. Leaflets were given out at the CND demo in London. I was handed a leaflet. Nearby male friends were ignored and brushed aside when they asked for leaflets. They are as anti-sexist as I am. Later a spokeswoman for the ETN march said in a local newspaper, "Men will not be turned away," NOT, "Men are welcome", or, "The streets are dangerous for women and men."

The obvious conclusion from her attitude is that all men ~~xxxx~~ are rapists. This is as ridiculous as saying that all women are fighting for equality between the sexes.

PATRIOTISM
Who built the divisions between nations in the first place. Who decided where those barriers should exist. Sure, some borders exist on geographical lines but others don't. Take most of central Europe. Who decides where France ends and Spain begins? Germany? Austria? Switzerland? Wales? The border between Ulster and the Irish Republic runs through villages - walk down the street, you're in a different country. Think of the border between East and West Germany. These divisions which keep us all apart are purely artificial ones to keep us separate and prevent us from creating some sense of unity, to keep us from trusting the unknown 'them' on the other side of the fence.

THE RUSSIANS ARE COMING/THE RUSSIANS ARE COMING!!!

AND
Think also about the NF/BN attempting to claim British racial purity and demanding that we must keep our race white which they say is the best (don't they all say!). free from mingling with lesser races. JUST LOOK AT HISTORY. The British race is about the most bastardized race in the West. We've had the Vikings, The Normans, The Romans and countless other races coming over here throughout history.

PEOPLE
RACIAL PURITY IS A MYTH? ALWAYS HAS BEEN. There's evidence coming to light from studies of prehistoric peoples to suggest that human life as we know it, originally came from Africa and spread outwards round the world from there. If that's true then all but the Africans are immigrants.

WE'RE ALL THE SAME FUCKING RACE

And just how far back are the NF/BN prepared to go to prove that someone is not 'British'. NO ONE can guarantee that their family for as long as it has existed has lived solely in anarchy really got itself a bad name, perpetuated in 77 by the pistols and the papers; anarchy became a label of chaos and destruction, you mention the word and people in the street associate you with trouble making destructive elements. Gradually it is being understood as far from destructive. (If any destruction is used it is in breaking down the old values and conventions). anarchy is taking full responsibility for ones actions and thoughts. FLOATING ANARCHY is really the same thing taken a stage further.

FLOATING

Daavid Allen from 'WOTS GONG ON'

"FLOATING ANARCHY- (don't think swim! Or improvising on existential tides....)

ORGANARCHY which is in high octave upper Chakra Anarchy for the high places in people.

1. Government without heavy handed party line
2. Belief in other people without greed for possessions.
3. Spiritually without organised religions.

...anway institutions are ANATHEMA that's for sure."

To decipher this Daavid goes on to say...

"The pollution of the word anarchy has happened because of the orgy-anarchic-smash-and-then-we'll-see sub-chakra anarchy which and equivalently earthbound media delight in alarming about. In fact floating anarchy is dependant on people staying high(not drug induced). it is supremely fragile and vulnerable as we are. Heavy aggression will destroy it's

There was much more in the book about looking at this from a political, ecological even natural farming viewpoints, but it all revolves around an INWARD revolution and inner change. Take responsibility for your own life.

"Watch yourself as if watching a stranger then watch yourself as if watching a stranger again, then gradually you clearly understand and can accept how you are affecting people and your surroundings. Soon you can begin to take full responsibility for your actions, no blame, no justification, just cool observation and running repairs."

"What Govt. needs is balance between structure and improvisation. What we see is what we were, Where now is up to you too."
